"Berliner Glas has shown an impressive development in recent years," explains the new Executive Vice President Operations & COO Thomas Polzer. "I look forward to actively shaping the future course of the company. I see my primary tasks creating the necessary framework conditions for an optimal production process and continuing the previous profitable growth of Berliner Glas."

Thomas Polzer has many years of extensive experience in global operations management from his previous work in the optical, opto-electronic, and semiconductor industries at various locations both in Germany and around the world. He holds an MBA in corporate management in addition to a mechanical engineering degree.

"The expansion of the executive management team with Thomas Polzer is another forward-looking milestone for the entire Berliner Glas Group," explains CEO Dr. Andreas Nitze. "With him, we gained a proven expert in the area of operations who will support us to further implement our growth strategy."
